ABOUT THE BOOK

PETRI-CHOR: THE MAHARAJAS' EXPRESS HEIST is a science-fiction comedy thriller that follows a young genius scientist on what should have been a simple train journey to visit his grandfather.

But when the mysterious mastermind Petri-Chor launches an ambitious plan to steal the luxurious Maharajas' Express, the journey takes an unexpected turn. With futuristic robots, anti-gravity technology, secret lunar railways, asteroid hideouts, and a train capable of traveling between planets, the adventure quickly expands beyond Earth itself.

Filled with humor, suspense, imaginative inventions, and heartwarming family moments, this story combines the excitement of a sci-fi blockbuster with the charm of a family adventure.

Join the scientist, Petri-Chor, and a cast of unforgettable characters as they discover that sometimes the greatest journeys begin with the smell of rain.

FOREWORD

Stories begin with a simple idea.

Sometimes that idea is a question.

What if a luxury train disappeared?

What if it was taken to the Moon?

What if the world's greatest train thief was not interested in money, but in creating the most extraordinary adventure ever imagined?

PETRI-CHOR: THE MAHARAJAS' EXPRESS HEIST is a fun blend of science fiction, comedy, mystery, and imagination. It takes readers on an unforgettable journey from a rainy evening in India to lunar railways, asteroid headquarters, futuristic inventions, and interplanetary trains.

At its heart, this story celebrates curiosity, creativity, friendship, science, and the joy of thinking beyond limits. It reminds us that great adventures often begin with simple questions and a little imagination.

So sit back, imagine the smell of rain after a long dry day, and prepare to board the most unusual train journey ever created.

Welcome aboard the Maharajas' Express.

Enjoy the adventure!

PETRI-CHOR: THE MAHARAJAS' EXPRESS HEIST

A Sci- Fi Comedy Thriller

ACT 1 — THE RAIN

A cool monsoon evening covers India.

Raindrops fall on dry soil. The familiar smell rises into the air. Scientists call it petrichor.

But far below an abandoned railway yard, a giant steel door opens.

ACCESS GRANTED.

A shadow steps forward.

“People think petrichor is a smell.”

Lightning flashes.

“But I am Petri- Chor.”

Dramatic music begins.

ACT 2 — THE SCIENTIST'S JOURNEY

Hundreds of kilometers away, a young genius scientist boards the luxurious Maharajas' Express.

He is going to visit his maternal grandfather, who has promised homemade sweets, mangoes, and special tea.

The scientist carries a science kit, telescope, physics notebook, and pocket robot.

Grandpa calls.

“Where are you?”

“On the train.”

“Don't be late.”

"Nothing can stop this train."

The universe immediately takes that as a challenge.

ACT 3 — THE VILLAIN'S PLAN

Deep underground, Petri- Chor reveals a giant hologram of the Maharajas' Express.

His crew watches in amazement.

"Tonight we steal the train."

Behind him stand enormous machines, robots, and anti- gravity engines.

"Why not rob a bank?" asks a henchman.

"Because trains are cooler."

Everyone agrees.

ACT 4 — DISTRACTION

Petri- Chor discovers the scientist on the passenger list.

To keep him occupied, he sends a package filled with advanced science kits and a note congratulating him on winning unlimited science.

The scientist instantly becomes absorbed in the gifts and forgets everything else.

ACT 5 — THE HEIST

At midnight, anti- gravity drones appear above the speeding train.

Robots descend from the sky. Giant machinery surrounds the coaches.

Blue energy envelops the Maharajas' Express.

Slowly, the entire train rises from the tracks.

Most passengers do not even notice.

ACT 6 — THE DISAPPEARANCE

Within minutes, the train vanishes.

The tracks vanish.

The station sign vanishes.

Even the timetable vanishes.

“No witnesses,” declares Petri- Chor.

ACT 7 — GRANDPA WAITS

Morning arrives.

Grandpa prepares breakfast and waits.

Hours pass.

The scientist never arrives.

Grandpa becomes suspicious and wonders whether science—or something much stranger—is responsible.

ACT 8 — THE AWAKENING

Five hours later, the scientist finishes every science kit.

Looking outside, he sees no Earth, no tracks, and no stations.

Only the Moon.

“I believe I missed my stop,” he says.

ACT 9 — THE MOON

The train has been transported onto a secret lunar railway.

Passengers admire Earth shining in the sky.

Some think it is the greatest train ride ever.

Others are simply confused.

ACT 10 — THE CHASE

The scientist launches his invention, the Relativi- Jet 5000.

He chases Petri- Chor through lunar tunnels, asteroid fields, space stations, and wormholes.

Yet Petri- Chor always remains one step ahead.

ACT 11 — THE SECRET

The scientist finally reaches a headquarters hidden inside a hollow asteroid.

Petri- Chor reveals that he has not merely stolen the train—he has upgraded it.

The Maharajas' Express can now travel between planets and even star systems.

ACT 12 — THE FINAL REVEAL

Petri- Chor activates the Petrichor Engine.

The scent of fresh rain spreads across space.

The Moon smells like rain.

Mars smells like rain.

Space stations smell like rain.

Everyone smiles.

ACT 13 — GRANDPA'S HOUSE

Petri- Chor returns the scientist to Earth.

The scientist finally reaches Grandpa's house.

The sweets, tea, and mangoes are waiting.

“Long journey?” Grandpa asks.

“You would not believe me.”

“Moon again?”

“This is the third time,” Grandpa replies.

POST-CREDIT SCENE

Far beyond the Solar System, an emergency signal arrives.

A mysterious voice announces:

“Attention Earth. Someone has stolen Saturn's rings.”

Everyone turns toward Petri-Chor.

“For once, it wasn't me.”
